

WAR OMINOUSLY QUIET EXCEPT IN AIR

Meandering Along the Main Stem

By WASH FAYETTE

Fifty years ago about this time a branch of "Coxey's Army" of unemployed, marched into Washington C. H. from the west, halted over night at the Old Fair Grounds on Columbus Avenue and the next day started on their weary way afoot toward the national capital.

It was a motley group and most of them were penniless. It was necessary for the local citizens to supply them with food—which they did to keep them moving after the night's rest here.

The "army" gathered more men as it advanced upon the national capital, where the leader made an appeal for relief from unemployment and better living conditions.

Other branches of the "army" were formed, starting in the mid-west and marching afoot to Washington, D. C., where the large group finally disbanded without having accomplished anything worth while. Many of them had difficulty reaching home.

In some instances the non-descript body of men found freight trains available to move them. This expedited their "march".

Coxey later tried organizing a second army, but was not successful. At one time he spoke in Washington C. H. while a candidate for office.

"Coxey's Army" preceded the William McKinley-William Jennings Bryan election, and the march took place during one of the worst depressions the country has ever weathered.

Those big black ants (and possibly a lot of uncles and other relatives) that have a nest under the south steps of the Court House apparently are doing a little spreading out, and now have several big nests at various places about the lawn.

One or two of these villages, or cities of the ants, are some two feet across, and the ants have been working untiringly in burrowing out their underground tunnels and places for rearing their young.

The industrious insects are causing the caretakers of the Court House a great deal of trouble in trying to exterminate them, and so far have resisted all efforts to be driven from their dens, but continue to pile up the earth removed from their subterranean homes.

MRS. AL SMITH DIES OF VIRUS PNEUMONIA

Wife of Former New York Governor Ill 5 Years

NEW YORK, May 4.—(P)—Mrs. Alfred E. Smith, wife of the former governor of New York state, died early today of virus pneumonia in St. Vincent's Hospital.

She had been ill five weeks.

Mrs. Smith, the former Catherine A. Dunn of the Bronx, was in her 60's. She married Smith in 1900 when he was a budding Tammany Hall politician.

They lived on the teeming East Side and continued to maintain a residence there even after Smith was elected governor. He served four terms.

Although Mrs. Smith's interests were centered primarily in her family, she accompanied her husband on campaign trips, including a tour of the country in 1928 when he was a Democratic candidate for president.

WEST UNION ON FAST TIME COMMISSIONERS ARE NOT

WEST UNION, May 4.—(P)—West Union, seat of Adams County, is back on "fast time."

Council last night voted the change in disregard of action of county commissioners earlier in the week which caused the town clock to be returned to Eastern Standard Time.

U. S. CASUALTIES MOUNT

WASHINGTON, May 4.—(P)—The armed forces have suffered a total of 197,841 casualties since the outbreak of the war, on the basis of the latest reports by the army and navy. This is an increase of 5,005 over the total announced a week ago.

WHISKY MAKING CAN'T START FOR SOME TIME YET

President Asks $800,000,000 For U. S. Participation in United Nations Relief

WASHINGTON, May 4.—(P)—Chairman Donald M. Nelson of the War Production Board said there is no prospect for resumption of whisky making for at least "three or four months."

Testifying before the Senate's special liquor shortage investigating committee, Nelson told Senator Ferguson (R-Mich) he saw no possibility of a "holiday" from industrial alcohol manufacture "in the immediate future."

"You mean during the next three or four months?" Ferguson asked.

"In the next three or four months, unless there should be a reduction in requirements for industrial alcohol," Nelson replied.

United Nations Relief

President Roosevelt today asked Congress for $800,000,000—$450,000,000 of it in cash—for American participation in the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration.

The money, first actually requested for this country's share, is designed to cover the period before relief operations begin in the liberated areas—the period in which UNRRA will have to purchase supplies and provide various necessary services.

In addition to the cash request, equivalent to one-third of the authorized $1,350,000,000 American pledge, Mr. Roosevelt also asked for authority to transfer $340,000,000 worth of supplies, services and funds available under lend-lease. This would be counted toward the total promised contribution.

Surplus Army Food

Lee Marshall, director of distribution for the War Food Administration (WFA), proposed today that, when the war ends, surplus food held by the armed services be offered for resale first and on a probated basis to original sellers, for disposal through regular retail channels.

New Tax Bill

Republican Leader Martin, of Massachusetts, adds his voice to the predictions of passage for the streamlined tax bill to steer 30,000,000 taxpayers clear of making returns. House debate entered its second day and there was little opposition expressed to it.

TURNED BACK METERS FOR HIS 'CLIENTS'

NEW YORK, May 4.—(P)—A 53-year-old electrician who, Consolidated Edison Company officials charged, earned from $10,000 to $15,000 a year by turning back electric meters for New York and Westchester County "clients," was under arrest today.

Detective Lieutenant Vincent Hastings said Isidore V. Wolfson of Yonkers, N. Y., a meter-reader with the firm 25 years ago, admitted taking a third of his "clients" savings for reducing their electric light bills 50 percent.

Company investigators said they have been trailing Wolfson for 20 years and that persons who have had their meters turned back would "have to make goo."

SHIPYARD MEN INJURED

BALTIMORE, May 4.—(P)—Thirteen shipyard workers were injured today, three of them seriously, in an engine-room explosion on one of the Liberty ships being outfitted at the Bethlehem-Fairfield shipyards.

Piqua Gets Ready For Celebration As Capt. 'Ace' Gentile Starts Home

PIQUA, May 4.—(P)—News that Piqua's favorite citizen and America's ace of aces in the European theater war, Capt. Don S. Gentile, was on his way home from London touched off plans today for the biggest celebration in this city's history and sent a ripple of excitement through the campus of a girl's college.

Gentile's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Gentile, and his sister Edith are waiting to see Don before they make any plans for a celebration, but the town is getting ready to splurge and Western College at Oxford, Ohio, waits for the fighter pilot to make a promised visit.

"We've waited so long," said his mother. "I hope he gets here soon. We'll have a nice time when he gets home."

Edith, who is 19, said "it's wonderful news. Every time the

Easing Of Food Restrictions Looms

By OVID A. MARTIN

WASHINGTON, May 4.—(P)—Further easing of civilian food supplies appeared probable today as the government made all cuts of pork, veal, lamb and mutton, and all other rationed meats except beef steaks and roasts, ration-free.

Present limitations on sales of fluid milk, ice cream, cottage cheese, milk drinks and other dairy products, and of margarine may be loosened somewhat in the next few weeks.

It is a feast-like fare the government has laid out before civilians in recent weeks—a fare that prompted some Republican members of congress to cry "politics." Meats are the third major class of food to be made ration-free recently. The others were frozen fruits and vegetables and some kinds of canned vegetables, and food fats such as lard, vegetable shortening and oils.

All this may be more or less temporary, however. A spokesman for the War Food Administration said he hoped the public would not become "overly optimistic" with regard to future supplies. It may be necessary, he said, to tighten up considerably next fall and winter.

The point bonanza was not all

JAP ATTACKS IN BURMA FAIL AS FIGHTING RAGES IN CHINA

American Bombers, Meanwhile, Continue To Carry Brunt of Pacific Island War by Blasting Bases Over Wide Area

By RICHARD C. BERGHOLZ

(By the Associated Press)

Furious Japanese attempts to capture the Allied base of Kohima in Eastern India before the monsoon rains set in have been repulsed but there is no indication of a let-up in fighting all along the Burma-India front.

With the monsoon rains due within two weeks, the Japanese are making a last-gasp assault on Allied troops entrenched in Kohima town, 35 miles south of the important Bengal-Assam Railroad, and on defenders of Imphal, important Indian border base, 60 miles south of Kohima.

Allied headquarters said Japanese raids in the vicinity of Kohima were repelled. There was no change reported in the fighting around Imphal, where Tokyo radio claimed 30,000 Allied troops have been evacuated.

On the Arakan front in north coastal Burma, counter-attacking Allied troops used tanks to repel a Japanese penetration near Buthehau.

China's forces in Honan Province fought desperately against large enemy armies which seek to complete conquest of the Peiping-Hankow Railroad. Latest reports indicated the railroad town of Hsuehchang is being attacked both from the north and south, but remains in Chinese hands.

Hard-hitting bombers carried the brunt of the war offensive in the southwest Pacific reports. The aircraft smashed Rabaul, New Britain, with an 88-ton blow, and pounded targets at Woleai in the western Carolines and at Biak Island in the Schouten group west of newly-conquered Hollandia, Dutch New Guinea.

A mix-up on signals apparently caused a brief clash between two P-T boats and two American fighter planes near Rabaul Monday, Gen. Douglas MacArthur said. Both planes were shot down and both boats wrecked. Some casualties resulted.

DON'T CUSS THE COOK THEY'RE HUMAN TOO

AN ADVANCED NEW GUINEA BASE, May 4.—(P)—Out here where the food is strictly GI morning, noon and night, the cooks were given a measure of protection by an official order posted today.

It read: "Hereafter no member of this mess personnel shall curse the cook, either on or off duty. Cooks are human, too, and are doing their best."

Only yesterday this order was posted on the bulletin board: "Hereafter no member of this mess personnel shall in a loud and uncouth manner or otherwise refer to the fruit juice as battery acid."

New Draft Plan Is In Making To Keep Men Over 26 On Jobs

JUNE 14 TO BE FLAG DAY BY PROCLAMATION OF FOR

WASHINGTON, May 4.—(P)—President Roosevelt today proclaimed June 14 as Flag Day, to be observed "as a day of earnest rededication to those high principles of humanity and civilization which constitute the foundations of the republic."

That supply, SS explained, is expected to last at least another six weeks and perhaps as much as three months longer. What shape the new plan will take could not be learned.

Until that plan is disclosed, SS said, no man over 26 and engaged in an essential or war-supporting industry or in agriculture is to be drafted anywhere in the United States.

(SS wishes it stressed here that this flat ban on essentially engaged men over 26 is not new.)

SS said the only men over 26 the draft boards have any right to take at this time and until further notice from national headquarters are men who volunteer or men doing non-essential work. Bartenders, for instance.

If any men over 26 still are confused about their position, perhaps the following may make clear where they stand:

Veterans Benefit Bill Congress Storm Center

By WILLIAM F. ARBOGAST

WASHINGTON, May 4.—(P)—The American Legion's "G. I. Bill of Rights"—an overall veterans benefits measure—today moved into the vortex of a congressional storm.

Rewritten yesterday by the House Veterans' committee, the Senate-approved measure is expected to be buffeted by a barrage of amendments when it reaches the House floor, probably next week.

Topping the expected amendments are proposals for a "bonus," or adjusted compensation, and for restoration of a Senate provision for a maximum of $1,300 in unemployment benefits for veterans unable to find work after their discharge. The House committee cut the maximum to $520.

Chairman Rankin (D., Miss.), who fought for restrictions on unemployment payments, said he would seek to have amendments offered freely from the floor. While the committee was unanimous in voting to report the measure after more than two weeks of executive sessions, Rankin emphasized this did not necessarily mean the bill as rewritten by his group would have the committee's full backing on the floor.

System Expected To Be Announced and Put Into Effect Before Present Pool of 18-to 26-year-olds Is Exhausted

By JAMES MARLOW AND GEORGE ZIELKE

WASHINGTON, May 4.—(P)—Selective Service (SS) headquarters today said it is working on a new draft plan to be announced before the nation's draft boards have exhausted their supply of men 18 to 26 years old.

That supply, SS explained, is expected to last at least another six weeks and perhaps as much as three months longer. What shape the new plan will take could not be learned.

AERIAL ASSAULT HITS EUROPE IN INVASION AREA

American Bombers Roar Back Over Hitler's Fortress as British Come Back

(By the Associated Press)

American Flying Fortresses, blasting at Hitler's waning air power in the 20th consecutive day of pre-invasion aerial assaults, bombed a German airfield in Holland today without loss of a single plane.

The new blows by heavy American bombers coincided with morning attacks by both American and British bombers on German anti-invasion installations in northern France.

A preliminary U. S. announcement indicated the Fortress formation which slammed explosives into the airfield somewhere in Holland probably numbered less than 250 planes. It made no mention of fighter escort.

Nevertheless, the combined assault by this streamlined force and the lighter bombers brought to around 6,000 tons the weight of bombs loosed on the continent by something like 1,750 bombers last night and today.

Nazi Supplies Smashed

Staggering bomb loads last night fell on Bucharest in Romania and three vast stores of military supplies which the Germans had piled in northern France to meet invasion.

The aerial softening of Germany went into its 20th straight day today when U. S. Marauders and Havocs flew through the dawn skies against the maze of military targets in northern France. Berlin said planes were over northwest Germany.

Around 3,500 tons were sprayed by 750 heavy RAF planes on a large military depot at Mailly southeast of Reims, on aviation stores at Montdidier southeast of Amiens and on an ammunition dump at Chateaudun northwest of Orleans. German night fighters engaged heavily and 49 British planes fell to destruction.

The bombing of the two-mile long rail yards of Bucharest appeared easy for the British heavy and medium bombers. The Germans gave that blow the accolade of "terror attack," meaning it was heavy and effective. The yards were filled with German military traffic moving to meet the massing Russians. In all 1,250 flights from Italy yesterday, three Allied planes were lost.

Ominous Quiet

A still and heavy suspense hung over the great operations areas of Russia, Great Britain and Italy where millions of Allied troops awaited the fateful hour of concerted offensives against Germany from the east, west and south.

Local German attacks in the south of old Poland were crushed by Soviet troops, Moscow said. The Romanians reported heavy fighting west of Iasi among the important oil fields of Targu-Frumos. The Russians held their tight and straining siege on Sevastopol and sent their bombers against Lwow, Sambor, Stanislavow and Roman—the latter in Romania. Moscow said 114 German planes were felled yesterday, by far the largest whittling of the Luftwaffe during the day.

Patrols and artillery duels were reported on Italian fronts. Indians on the Eighth Army front repulsed a small German attack.

Marshal Tito's Yugoslav military mission in London said there was no chance of agreement with King Peter's followers until after the war.

Berlin loudly proclaimed that the hardened parachute and air borne troops which bested the Allies at Cassino in Italy had been moved into the "Atlantic Wall."

Nazi reconnaissance pilots reported "great concentrations of shipping anchored off the southern coast of England," with Allied invasion troops marching in and out of the ships. The Nazis also asserted without confirmation that U-boats had sunk five merchantmen of 30,000 tons and eight destroyers or escorts bound for a maximum of $1,300 in unemployment benefits for veterans unable to find work after their discharge. The House committee cut the maximum to $520.

Chairman Rankin (D., Miss.), who fought for restrictions on unemployment payments, said he would seek to have amendments offered freely from the floor. While the committee was unanimous in voting to report the measure after more than two weeks of executive sessions, Rankin emphasized this did not necessarily mean the bill as rewritten by his group would have the committee's full backing on the floor.

Rep. Rogers of Massachusetts, ranking Republican on the committee, predicted the Senate unemployment provisions would be restored. They call for payments of from $15 to $25 weekly for a maximum of 52 weeks during the first two years after discharge, the amount being based on the veteran's marital status and the number of dependents. The House committee cut the maximum payment period to 26 weeks and ordered a flat $20 weekly payment, regardless of dependency.

Until that plan is disclosed, SS said, no man over 26 and engaged in an essential or war-supporting industry or in agriculture is to be drafted anywhere in the United States.

(SS wishes it stressed here that this flat ban on essentially engaged men over 26 is not new.)

The continuing air assault on the European continent is piling up a cumulative destruction of German transportation facilities beyond the Nazis' ability to make repairs, Secretary of War Stimson reported today. Stimson said the Nazis were sending up their pursuit ships mainly against

SOIL IMPROVEMENT DISCUSSED AT FB

Paint Township Council II Suggests Methods

Soil improvement, ways to have better hay crops and the problems of a farmer with an average-sized farm were discussed when Paint Township Farm Bureau Council II met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Delbert Hays.

Free enterprise will be the topic of discussion at the June meeting of the council with Miss Clara, Elmer and Raymond Zimmerman.

It was suggested that farmers raise more corn or otherwise there might be a feed shortage, which would curtail stock production. Fertilizer and other crop medicines were advocated and an admonition to keep farm machinery repaired and in tip-top running order were offered as suggestions.

Fertilizing hay over the soil and cutting hay early for better quality were ideas presented in the discussion of hay crops. Many farmers must operate as a one man unit on farms of 150-160 acres, it was believed.

NEW DRAFT PLAN BEING WORKED OUT TO KEEP MEN OVER 26 ON JOB

SS notified all state directors April 8 as follows:

"You are to ... postpone the processing for induction of men 26 and over who are making a contribution to essential agricultural, war production or war-supporting activities, even though such men have been found acceptable for military service or have been ordered to report for induction or pre-military physical examination."

SS says that order still stands. But suppose a man over 26—and engaged in agriculture, war production or a war-supporting activity—is taken by his draft board between now and the time SS headquarters announces its new plan or gives other instructions about the men over 26. What does he do? SS says he should protest to the board immediately, pointing out he is engaged in one of the essential or war supporting activities. The boards all have lists of such activities.

But suppose the board ignores his protest and insists on inducting him anyway. What then? SS says then he should take his case at once to the state director of Selective Service.

But there is a paragraph in that order of April 8 which may cause some questioning of all SS has said above. That paragraph reads: "Postponement of the processing of such (26 or over) should remain in effect until you are satisfied that the processing of men under the age of 26 has been substantially accomplished."

Would that indicate that state directors and not national SS here is to decide when local boards are to start drafting men over 26 again?

SS says no, that the ban remains until lifted nationally by SS in Washington and is not to be lifted on a state-by-state basis according to the decision of individual state directors.

"He's had a lot of girl friends," she commented. "He has been writing to two—Marge Dill of Piqua and Betty Levering of Middletown."

Miss Dill is an office clerk and Miss Levering is the student Gentile has promised to visit at Western College.

"He's one of the very nicest boys I know," Miss Levering said. "We used to have lots of fun together back in high school and I hope we'll be able to have lots more when Don gets home."

Miss Levering said things never were dull when Gentile was around. He had a reputation for reckless driving and flying in Piqua. "Incidentally, it was my house that he used to fly so low over," she declared.

The City Commission said "Don Gentile Day" would be celebrated after the son of Italian immigrants returns to his native city.

Gov. John W. Bricker, the state's senators and congressmen, other high officials and Capt. Eddie Rickenbacker, top ace of the last World War and a native of Columbus, have been invited. Troops and planes will be sent here by the Army for a parade.

Capt. Gentile and his flying mate, Lt. John T. Godfrey, have left their base in Britain en route

His Example Is Gone

Seeking contributing causes for war-time delinquency among our young boys, welfare workers have arrived at the conclusion these lads have lost their familiar models. A boy finds his best model in an older boy.

The youngster of 14 usually patterns his life after some one 18 or 19. It may be a brother, or just someone in the neighborhood. He becomes the younger boy's hero, to be followed with whole-souled devotion.

Deprived of his hero because he has gone to war, the lad is at loose ends. Parents and teachers too often lack the understanding of a boy's problems. He cannot in his own mind feel he can ever attain their standards of conduct. They preach too much, and soon the youngster they strive to help gets the impression life is nothing more than a series of don'ts and musts.

Hero worship is a part of every boy's life. The father who is a hero to his own son will have little trouble with his offspring so long as he retains that role by right living. It is a tragedy of the times that older boys have been removed, leaving a void in the lives of the youngsters who saw in them their ideals.

It is another penalty of war for which society will be assessed dearly unless common sense and understanding are applied to the problem of youthful delinquency.

A New Star

Toward the end of its season there appeared at the Metropolitan Opera House in New York the other night an artist who stepped from minor roles into full-fledged stardom with a triumphant performance of the title role in Wagner's "Parsifal." He is Emery Darcy, a Chicago-born son of Norwegian parents, who was a winner of the Metropolitan Auditions of Air in 1940.

Mr. Darcy started his career as a high baritone, but he was advised to work to become a tenor. He prepared himself for what are called heroic tenor roles in the Wagnerian operas. At 36 he sang the difficult part of Parsifal for the first time in his career. Slender in person, simple in his acting, eloquent of voice, he both looked and sang the role as few Metropolitan tenors have performed it.

In short, this young American artist was prepared to assume one of the heroic tenor roles in the Wagnerian repertoire when a chance presented itself. The chance came. The other night Lauritz Melchior, the Metropolitan's regular Wagnerian tenor, had another engagement. Instead of doing Parsifal he appeared on a radio program, where he horsed around with Frank Sinatra.

Mr. Melchior was even able to elicit a few screams from Mr. Sinatra's adolescent girl fans. While this was going on Mr. Darcy was singing Parsifal, vice Melchior. Mr. Melchior assured Mr. Sinatra that music and musicians were all one, whatever their meter. This is doubtless a liberal truism. At all events, it gave the

Hints on Etiquette

Most parents are frequently annoyed with their children in their "in-between" ages, between 7 and 12. Their manners are often the subject of much criticism. You don't expect perfection of courtesy from grown-up friends, why expect it of children? Don't criticize them. It has a very bad effect on the children making them self-conscious and awkward.

You can adapt yourself to circumstances or environment, and are loving and fond of children. The year will be productive of good fortune, especially favoring secretarial, literary and artistic abilities. Do not be improvident, however. Watch expenses. Born today a child will be possessed of much artistic, musical, literary and psychic abilities, and will be successful therein provided undue extravagance is checked in early years.

Youngsters To Help

Don't be surprised if your young hopeful soon turns into a promoter. The Children's Bureau of the Department of Labor is gathering up ideas for teen-age projects to be launched through kid's clubs in a program just recently begun.

With doctors, public health officers, adult community workers and mothers busy with war jobs, children in many communities have found ways to help. In one town kids organized their own Board of Health to watch sanitary conditions in the school. They sent out inspectors to see that candy was properly handled with scoops in the corner grocery. They scrutinized the school district garbage cans and notified the regular Board of Health when something was needed to be done.

Other kids' groups have taken over the family food problems for mothers working in war plants or volunteer activities. They are learning to plan meals, shop for low-point foods, watch ceiling prices and read labels to see that the family gets its money's worth.

The Children's Bureau urges that children's groups and their leaders look around the community and get going on the most important thing that needs to be done for public health, school lunch programs or safety campaigns.

Meat Ranks High on Dietary List

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M.D.

SOME OF the good ladies in the service canteens are worried because the soldiers prefer "meat and potatoes and gravy and pie." They fear this diet is unscientific. They have been taught by the

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

"green grass" school of pseudo-scientific dietetics that they should push carrots and spinach. Let us calm down and examine scientifically the claims of meat as an article of diet. (I examined potatoes before.)

The nutritional value of a food is determined by whether, first, it furnishes growth and repairs—substances to build tissues and replace body waste; second, whether it furnishes energy—calories which are like coal to your furnace or gasoline to your engine; and, third, whether it furnishes catalysts, the vitamins which control and regulate absorption and utilization of foods.

Meat is the richest substance for protein of any natural food. It contains weight for weight nearly four times as much protein as milk, twice as much as eggs or bread, and eight times as much as most vegetables. Not only that, but all the "vital" proteins are present in meat. The vital proteins are those that are made up of the amino acids that are necessary to growth and maintenance of weight and strength.

Amino Acids

There are ten of these: lysine, tryptophane, phenylalanine, leucine, isoleucine, threonine, methionine, and valine, are necessary for maintenance and arginine is necessary for growth. The tenth, histidine, is necessary for health, but its exact function is still in doubt. We know these are facts because the amino-acids can be separated and fed to animals one at a time. Young animals will maintain weight on nine of them, but will not grow to maximum until arginine has been added to the diet.

Hazards of protein malnutrition besides loss of weight and growth are lowered resistance and failure of wounds to heal.

I have no doubt that some day pills of amino acids will be exploited just as the vitamins are now.

Meat, eggs and milk are the only common food substances in which all these vital proteins occur and in a condition to be absorbed easily by the human body.

You can get them in vegetables, the pure vegetarian is safe, although it takes a combination of beans, peas, corn, wheat, nuts and a good deal of trouble to get them all in a vegetable diet. If you add milk, cheese and eggs, (the so-called "V.E.M.") diet—vegetables, eggs and milk—advocated by the lacto-vegetarian sect, you, of course, are more likely to get the vital proteins than by sticking to strict vegetarianism. But meat, milk and eggs are the only common articles of diet from which you can get all of them in concentrated and digestible form.

Minerals in Meat

As to minerals, meat leads all foods in the amount of iron and phosphorus. Many foods have more calcium than meat—milk, cheese, cauliflower, carrots, beans, celery, fruit, molasses. Oysters have the highest, fish the next highest content of calcium of all the meats.

The caloric value of meat, ounce for ounce, is higher than nearly any of the other common foods—for instance, four ounces of pork contain 402 calories, of beef 369 calories, of liver 177 calories, of beans 400 calories, of milk 75 calories, of fresh vegetables 90 calories, of bread 300 calories. Concentrated food, like sugar, is high—500 calories for four ounces. The fat content raises the caloric value of any meat.

The vitamin content of meat is very high—it contains A, B, C and some D. The digestibility of meat is one of its main advantages. Whereas the proteins of vegetables and nuts are to a considerable extent lost through lack of absorption meat is nearly completely absorbed.

NORTH TO DANGER by TOM GILL

CHAPTER TWENTY-FIVE

The fur firm of J. Holmes in Winnipeg sent a radio to Dove, telling him the last shipment was of excellent quality, and trusted they might expect more.

Meanwhile liquor continued to be smuggled to the Indians in ever-increasing quantities, and hourly the situation threatened to get out of hand.

Selkirk made a trip to Colin's cabin, for Rae had not been in Learmonth since trapping started. Smoking together, they sat before the stove that night while Colin listened to the older man's tale of recent events, and at the end he said, "Rod, the trouble is we only see what goes on at the surface."

"Isn't that bad enough?" "There may be something a lot worse. Look at it this way: Could possibly gain by a fight between Tennant and Dove? Neither of them."

"Then it's utterly senseless—as I said."

"Not quite. Someone could gain—don't forget we're at war."

"That means—"

"Modern war is a war of morale; and trouble with the Crees at a time like this can be made to look like serious internal dissension. Have you heard what the radio in the United States is saying about this? It weakens our war effort; it forces a body of mounties to stay here instead of patrolling the bay."

"What's the bay got to do with the war?"

"It's been called the weak link in the defense of this continent, Rod."

"But Good Lord! You don't believe that Tennant is actually working with Dove?"

"No, I don't. More likely, he's being worked by Dove. I've been thinking about something Tennant told me when I first came here. Tennant said that Dove had dared him to bring in any more white trappers—told him the Crees wouldn't stand for it. Well, you know what that sort of thing does to Nate. It's like a red rag to a bull."

"You think Dove wanted Tennant to bring those trappers in?"

"I think Dove wanted trouble. And I wouldn't be at all surprised if he didn't plant Olsen with Tennant to see that things got off to a good start." Colin laid down his pipe. "Well, that isn't my fight. I only hope I can keep out of it."

A doomed hope.

Three days before Christmas, Alec Gunn staggered back to the cabin with cut lips and a lacerated shoulder. Olsen had met him at the end of the Upper Nelson trap line and, cursing him for cutting in on Tennant's territory, knocked the old fellow down, then struck him twice with the steel chain of a trap, leaving him lying there, Olsen had gone on up the trail.

Ominously quiet, Colin taped up

Alec's shoulder and put him to bed. Next morning, after a silent breakfast, Colin said, "If you're able to walk, we'll go over to Olsen's cabin."

Alec looked anxious. "He's not alone. There's another trapper staying with him."

But Olsen was already putting on his parka.

Olsen and his partner were smoking in their cabin when, without knocking, Colin threw open the door. At sight of Colin's face, Olsen pushed back his chair and scrambled to his feet.

"You beat up my partner yesterday," Colin spoke only to Olsen.

The trapper glanced at Alec and laughed. "By the looks of him, I sure did." Leaning back against the wall, his fingers reached out for the heavy shovel standing by the stove. His close-set eyes were beginning to redden. "Maybe you came over to make something of it."

But Olsen's fingers never touched the shovel. Colin struck once, the trapper's head snapped back, and he crumpled down beside the stove. His partner covered in a corner.

"Don't," he began.

Colin shook his head. "I'm not going to hurt you. But when Olsen can listen, tell him Alec and I are still trapping the Upper Nelson."

Outside, Colin examined his skinned knuckles, then turned to Alec. "While we're here, we'd better let Dr. Benedict have a look at your shoulder." Strapping on their snowshoes, they cut across the lake toward the school.

An hour later, as they crossed the clearing, Colin saw Tennant's wolf team, harnessed outside Benedict's cabin, and for a moment he hesitated. If Nate were visiting Blair now, it might be a bad time to break the news of a fight with Tennant's trapper. Yet it was too late to turn back. Already the wolves had signaled his coming, and Nate was waving his hand from the doorway.

"Alec," Colin said, "go over to the hospital and show Dr. Benedict that shoulder. I'll pick you up later."

Tennant was waiting at the cabin door, the hood of his parka thrown back and the mackinaw shirt open over his great hairy chest.

"How's the firm of Rae and Gunn coming?" he called.

Colin stepped inside. "We'd be coming better, Nate, if your trappers would leave us alone."

"What's up?"

Without rancor, Colin told him about Olsen, while Tennant listened with a puzzled frown and Colin waited for the outburst that might mean war.

Instead, Tennant remained frowningly thoughtful; and, when Colin finished, Nate asked, "Is Alec hurt bad?"

"I don't think so."

"Good." Again he frowned.

"What I don't get is this—I told all my boys to lay off you and Alec. I told Olsen especially because he's working over your way."

Colin interrupted. "Nate, I think that's the whole point."

"Point of what?"

"Didn't Olsen once work for Dove?"

"Sure. But he's not working for him now."

"Certain of that?"

"Why, yes," Nate caught the look in Colin's eyes. "What are you driving at?"

"Just this: It's a big relief to me that Olsen's not acting on your orders. But the fact remains, he did go out of his way to make trouble for me after you told him to let Alec and me alone. I don't think he'd do that without some reason."

"And you think that reason is Dove?"

"I know that it would please Dove immensely if you and I quarreled." Colin stood up. "When's Blair due back from Winnipeg?"

"Tonight. I was just leaving a note for her."

"You'll be taking her to the Christmas dance?"

Tennant laughed. "And every other one, I hope." He stopped, then walked close to Rae. "Colin, I'm going to ask Blair to marry me. She knows I want to—she's always known it. And she's always put me off. But now the fur trade has done well by me, and—well, you know I've always loved her. The first pitched battle you and I ever had was because of Blair—remember?"

"I remember," Colin's voice sounded strangely flat even to his own ears. He knew Nate was waiting for him to speak; so he put out his hand. "I'm wishing you and Blair all the happiness there is."

Just then Dove entered the cabin with his usual quiet smile, looking, he said, for Dr. Benedict, and a few minutes later Colin left them.

Thoughtfully Dove looked after him. "I hear Rae is trapping on the Upper Nelson."

"He is," said Tennant.

"I'm glad to hear he called Olsen's bluff. That ought to give the Crees some courage."

Tennant grinned down at the little man. "I wouldn't bank on that. Not everybody could get away with it. Colin Rae happens to be a friend of mine—and a friend of Blair's."

Dove's eyebrows raised. "He's a friend of Selkirk's, too, but he doesn't let that stand in his way."

"His way to what?"

"To getting what he wants." Dove looked up at the ceiling. "Mr. Rae is a very smooth person with the ladies—all the ladies. I stopped at his cabin the day before freeze-up. And he wasn't alone." Smiling in reminiscence, Dove began talking slowly, with eyes that steadily darkened, Tennant listened.

Washington at a Glance

By JACK STINNETT

(Second of Two Articles)

WASHINGTON—(P)—Ralph K. Davies, deputy petroleum administrator for war, Harold L. Ickes' No. 1 oil man, is a walking example of the platitude that looks are deceiving.

In appearance he's pleasant enough to be any No. 1 oil man, or banker, or merchant. Of medium stature, rather slight build, with clear blue eyes, a mat of dark hair shot with gray and immaculate in attire that's as restrained as his demeanor, he hardly gives the impression of being stormy Ickes' right-hand man in the bitter battle of petroleum.

He gives the impression rather of being a mild, almost humorless, kindly man who has mounted rather easily to the top of the ladder. Nothing could be farther from the truth.

Associates tell me that he's a hard-headed business man, who won't give an inch once his mind is made up.

An example is that early in 1942 when oil tankers were being sunk by subs almost as fast as they could be loaded, experts in PAW told Davies that railroad tank cars could probably supply the eastern seaboard with 300,000 barrels a day. He set the goal so much higher that the experts ranted, raved and called him crazy. He merely informed them that that was the goal and they had to meet it. Within a few months, the exasperated experts were amazed to discover that tank cars were supplying the eastern states with 1,000,000 barrels a day.

Davies was born in Cherrydale, Va. There is a story kicking about that he rowed across the Potomac daily to attend high school in Georgetown. He couldn't have done that very many years, because at 17, he was a clerk in the office of the Standard Oil Co. of California. Step by tedious step, he climbed to senior vice president and in the process became active in international as well as American oil circles.

Far from being humorless, Davies has a type of sly, deadpan wit which slips out almost unnoticed. Not only that, but when the mood strikes him, he is a practical joker.

Getting Davies to talk about himself is like trying to pluck the molars of a mastodon. You can find out that he has a wife and three children, that his home is Menlo Park, just down the bay from San Francisco, but before you can find out if he has a swimming pool or just two bath tubs, you'll find yourself telling Davies your life story.

He's a constant bur under the saddle of his own public relations department. He won't allow himself to be publicized, and insists that all releases from his department be purely factual and non-editorial. In government circles, that's revolutionary.

Davies expects nothing more out of his wartime job than Ickes promised him when he came to Washington three years ago.

"Ralph Ickes said then, 'if you'll take this job and work hard, you'll make a success of it. You won't get any glory, but in the end you'll be rewarded. You'll be rewarded with a senatorial investigation.'"

Devins-Sollars Vows Are Exchanged in West Palm Beach Before Invited Guests

Socially Prominent Couple Are Married April 30 by Rev. R. F. Drummond, Pastor of Presbyterian Church

Mrs. Hazel Devins of South Main Street and Mrs. Walter E. Sollars of near this city have returned to their homes here from West Palm Beach, Florida, where they attended the marriage of Jayne Millicent Devins, daughter of Mrs. Devins, to Sgt. Herbert M. Sollars, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter E. Sollars, near this city, on Sunday evening, April thirtieth.

The single ring vows were exchanged in the First Presbyterian Church at six-thirty o'clock. Officiating at the ceremony was the Rev. R. F. Drummond, pastor of that church.

A short program of organ music by Mrs. Anderson, church organist, was heard preceding the strains of the "Wedding March" from Lohengrin, when the bride and bridegroom came to the altar. Among selections played were "I Love You Truly" and "Because."

The couple were preceded to the altar of the church by the ring-bearer, Ann Harsha, young daughter of Major and Mrs. J. M. Harsha, who are former residents of this city, now of West Palm Beach. The ring bearer carried the wedding band on a small satin pillow.

The ceremony was read before the palm-banked altar which was flanked by white burning tapers in two seven-branch candelabras. The altar was centered with a large floor basket of lilies which completed the decorations.

Witnessing the wedding were numerous invited servicemen and their wives, friends of the bridegroom from his station at Morrison Field in West Palm Beach. Also attending were Major and Mrs. Harsha and Mrs. Harsha's mother, Mrs. Harry P. Thomas.

For her marriage the personable bride of brunette coloring chose a white lace street-length frock with which she wore white gloves and a white Juliet cap. For her flowers she wore a single orchid pinned to the shoulder of her frock.

The ring bearer, Ann Harsha, stood to the right of the minister during the ceremony wearing a white flowered organza frock and a white starched-lace Dutch cap. She wore a shoulder corsage of pink sweetheart roses.

After the church ceremony the wedding party went to the attractive residence of Major and Mrs. Harsha, where a buffet supper and informal reception was held. A wedding cake on an antique silver stand was in the center of the prettily-appointed serving table. The base of the stand was banked with greenery entwined with small seasonal white blossoms and at each end of the table were placed tall white burning tapers.

After the guests were served, they assembled in the spacious and tastefully arranged living room. Here in front of the mantle was a huge mass of bougainvillea, a tropical shrub with a deep red bloom which grows abundantly in Florida. This gorgeous arrangement was flanked by palm leaves.

After a short wedding trip, the newly-weds are making their home in apartment 304 of the El Sid Apartments in West Palm Beach, Fla.

CRAIG'S Anniversary EVENT

A Store of Yesterday — Today — Tomorrow

When Washington C. H. was a small village, and Craig's Store was established in 1874 — women wore hoop skirts and crinolines, men wore leather boots and long coats, and they depended on Craigs to furnish merchandise of quality.

Today, Craigs is a modern store, with customers from Fayette and surrounding counties, who, like the folks of yesteryear, appreciate quality and friendly service.

Tomorrow, Craigs will be bigger and better, when post-war plans now being made, are fulfilled.

OHIO CAMPAIGN DEVELOPS SOME FACTION FIGHTS

Ten Aspirants for Governor Open Up Artillery for Promiscuous Shots

By E. E. EASTERLY
(By the Associated Press)

Verily, verily, primary election campaigns must produce some distressing moments for the party faithful.

During most of the year they are incriminated with claims that the ideals and leaders of their particular party are infallible.

Then comes the intra-party warfare of primary time and the partisan encounter developments such as these, which enlivened the Ohio scene today as four Republicans and six Democrats competed for the gubernatorial nomination.

A Republican pointed to a Democratic candidate as setting a proper example for a Republican candidate, and

A spokesman for a Democratic candidate declared his man was the only real Democrat in the primary.

Murray Seasegood of Cincinnati asserted that Mayor James G. Stewart of his city was slighting his duties while traveling about the state in quest of the Republican nomination for governor.

Seasegood, a supporter of a Stewart rival—Atty. Gen. Thomas J. Herbert—added that the Cincinnati mayor was campaigning on the taxpayers' time. Then he contrasted this with an announcement by Mayor Frank J. Lausche of Cleveland that he would take no salary from his city while stumping for the Democratic nomination for governor.

Seasegood also turned his fire on Ed D. Schorr, Republican state chairman, with a statement that Schorr controlled Ohio's Republican party and candidate Stewart.

The label of only genuine Democrat was applied to Frazier Reams of Toledo by Louis W. Adams of Columbus, chairman of the Reams campaign committee.

Elsewhere, the candidates generally confined themselves to promises of improvements in the state government.

However, Lt. Gov. Paul M. Herbert, Republican, arranged to meet tomorrow with liquor director Don A. Fisher for a discussion of Herbert's accusations that liquor agents have been circulating campaign material of another candidate, yet to be identified.

The lieutenant governor listed Trumbull and Erie as two counties in which he said the state agents were campaigning for one of his rivals.

Mayor Stewart, at Warren, asserted "private enterprise must be restored to its former status."

He told a group of Republican

Rationing Sidelights

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Realizing that it is impossible to cover the complete field of rationing and price control in the regular news stories, the Record-Herald will publish some sidelights on this complex and comprehensive government wartime program from time to time as warranted. women that if elected, "I shall see to it that more women occupy public office."

Lausche told audiences the state government spent $354,395,757 in 1942—"the greatest amount of money ever expended in any one-year period in the history of the state. And for what?"

James W. Huffman of Columbus, a Democrat, informed a Newark audience he favored creation of a state department of conservation to include all state agencies concerned with conserving Ohio's resources.

Frank A. Dye of Columbus, Democrat, also proposed establishment of an all-inclusive conservation department.

Annual Fund-Raising Drive For Scouts Planned

PROGRAM HERE IS EXPANDING TO WARTIME NEEDS

Solicitation To Be Packed Into Single Day, May 17; Breakfast as Starter

The people of Washington C. H. are to be given an opportunity to do something tangible for the city's youth week after next when the annual appeal for funds to support the Boy Scout activities here is made.

The drive, as the solicitation is commonly referred to, is to be concentrated in a single day—May 17. It is to be launched with a breakfast and pep meeting for the workers in the cafeteria at the high school.

No goal has been set, Walter F. Rettig, the county chairman, said and explained that "we will just get all we can and then fit our program to our finances." Any possibility that the appeal might bring in more money than was passed off with a shrug and a reminder that this never happened in the past when goals were set at figures, sometimes even below the barest needs. The records show that never has there been a fund raised that would warrant full development of the program without judicious allocation of money available.

Last year, the public contributed approximately $1,300 to the Boy Scout fund. But, with needs of supervised and wholesome activities for young boys increased by wartime youth problems and the current expansion of the program to include Cub packs for the boys of pre-Scout age, the busy businessmen who are giving their time to the movement agree that more will be needed this year.

Three Active Troops

Three troops of full-fledged Boy Scouts are now active here. Another has been forced into inactivity during the past year because the armed forces have taken leaders faster than successors could be trained. Then, too, it was explained, the program was handicapped by lack of sufficient funds.

At least five Cub packs are now in the final stages of formation with the possibility of more coming into being if the public supports the movement.

The first five cover all of the city's grade schools, thus reaching into every section of the city. Leaders hope to have more than 100 of the younger boys getting the benefits of the Cub program in the near future.

The campaign for funds, while not new to the people of Washington C. H., is to be streamlined and simplified this year. Chairmen either have been or soon will be named for each ward and they are to select their own committees of workers, Leonard Korn, the finance chairman explained.

These committees are to work out their own plans for the solicitation in their wards with an almost free hand. Scout leaders feel that in this way the campaign will fit both the section to be covered and the convictions of the solicitors.

Opportunity For All

Although every section of the city is to be canvassed to give everyone an opportunity to help support the movement, it was said that a house-to-house plan would be followed literally. Rather, the general plan calls for soliciting from a file of names of contributors of previous years.

Rettig, who, as principal of the high school, sees the city's youth at close range, said there never was a time when the Scout program was in greater need. It was pointed out that while juvenile delinquency is comparatively light in Washington C. H. now, largely because of supervised recreation and the Scout activities in the past, the dangers of young boys being swept off even keel is increased by the general nervous tension of wartime. It is as an antidote for this uneasiness of wartime that hard-headed businessmen are backing the scout movement, it was said.

The stingray is related to the sharks.
